Outlook:  A RED FLAG WATCH is posted today for the northern Sacramento Valley, California and surrounding foothills for moderate north winds and lower relative humidity. A strong disturbance will move into the Pacific Northwest states on today, bringing rain showers to the Washington and Oregon coasts. It will also bring gusty north to northwest winds to 25 mph to western Washington, western Oregon, and northern California. The remainder of the West will be mostly cloudy in the north with a slight chance of showers, and partly cloudy in the south. The remnants of Hurricane Rosa will be drawn into New Mexico, producing cloudiness and scattered showers over southern New Mexico. The potential for fire activity exists in California, where red flag conditions are forecast. Activity will remain low elsewhere.
